

DR PENFIELD SPEAKS ON USSR TRIP

By George Schafer

Why aren't we getting more scientific information from the Soviet Union — did this question ever occur to you? Dr. Wilder Penfield, who just returned from a two weeks trip in the U. S. S. R. answered the puzzle: "The work of Russian scientists is available to us as ours is to them . . . do we translate our works into Russian?"

Dr. Penfield addressed a joint meeting of the Montreal Neurological Society and the Montreal Physiological Society yesterday afternoon in the capacity packed Amphitheatre of the Neurological Institute. His topic was, "A Glimpse into Physiology and Neurology in the Soviet Union."

Friendly Atmosphere

In the course of his speech, Dr. Penfield discussed the work that is being carried on in a number of medical institutions he visited. Throughout his journey a friendly and hospitable atmosphere prevailed. Dr. Penfield, guest of the Academy of Science, gave three lectures; the question periods, he said, were "lively and blunt."

Centering his theme around Pavlov's theory on conditioned and unconditioned reflexes, Dr. Penfield went on to elaborate on the research being conducted at different experimental institutions.

Unknown

The firm belief in Ivan Pavlov's theories has unearthed neurological methods unknown to Western scientists. Some results, for example, show that the removal of half of the cerebral cortex is compensated in time and a restoration of bodily functions; the removal of the other part of the cortex, however, results in the total loss of the returned functions forever. Experiments conducted with animals indicate that after the removal of the bilateral cortex, the loss of 1 per cent of blood may cause death.

Soviet Research

Regretfully noting the absence of Dr. Hebb . . . the Director of the Neurological Institute continued to elaborate on psychological branches of Soviet research. In one of the institutes there are five semi-sound proof Pavlov Chambers in which dogs are submitted to different tests. They are semi-sound proof because dogs fall asleep in completely sound proof confines.

Although vivisection is practised on dogs for experimental purposes, the friendship of man's best pal is highly valued, sometimes they are nearly regarded as staff members of the experimental stations.

New Buildings

Although some branches of research have their headquarters in ancient palaces, new buildings are constantly being constructed to house the needs of expanding medical centers. There are about 150 Academicians in all sciences . . . they are the leaders in their field and have positions involving influence, social standing, and, "I assume, a corresponding salary."

"I was really delighted with the general freedom of discussion and the non-existence of persecution among most scientists."

CAMSI ENDS THREE DAY CONFERENCE WITH SPEECHES

The Canadian Association Of Medical Students and Internes brought its Montreal Convention to a successful close yesterday. The University of Montreal was host to students and internes from all the medical schools across Canada at the three day conference. Yesterday, the representatives moved from University of Montreal to the Montreal General Hospital, where they were addressed by Dr. R. R. Struthers, Secretary of the McGill Medical Curriculum Committee.

After a luncheon, Dr. D. L. Thomson, of McGill University, made some humorous remarks, bearing on the medical profession. Dr. Thomson is Vice Principal, Dean of Graduate Studies and Research, and Chairman of the Department of Biochemistry at McGill. He also is active in many Scientific organizations and carries on research.

CAMSI is an organization devoted to promote the exchange of ideas among medical students in order to attack common problems on a national basis, and to help prepare the members for the role they are to take in combatting disease. From modest beginnings in 1938, CAMSI has grown to become a national organization. Its

YOU THINK YOU HAVE TROUBLES

—(CUP)—Edmonton, Alberta—Getting Out a Paper Is No Picnic. If we print jokes, we're silly.

If we don't we're too serious.

If we publish original matter, they say we lack variety.

If we publish things from other papers, we're too lazy to write.

If we stay on the job, we ought to be rustling news.

If we're rustling news, we're not attending to business in our own department.

If we don't print contributions, we don't show proper appreciation.

If we print them the paper is filled with junk.

Getting out a paper is no picnic.

Like as not somebody will say we swiped this from an exchange. So we did.

500 FROSH JOIN CLUBS EN MASSE

Over 500 people jammed their way into the McGill Union last night for the annual Activities Night.

Revue

The Red and White Revue and dancing exhibitions attracted most of the students. The rest gathered at the different booths that were situated throughout the Union.

The Red and White Review presented several musical numbers from last year's show.

MOC

Attention was focussed on a member of the McGill Outing Club, who climbed the side of the Union, which was used in place of a mountain. MOC also showed movies of club activities.

Students crowded the ballroom to see the exhibition given by the International Dance Studios in preparation for a ballroom dancing course to be given at McGill this year.

Most clubs signed about 20 or 30 new members.

Many Clubs

Booths were set up by the Psychology Club, the Players Club, the McGill Pistol and Rifle Club, the Pre-Medical Society, the Geology Club, the Music Club, the Current Affairs Club, the Literature Society, the Science Fiction Club, the Choral Society, the Debating Union, the Camera Club, the Indian Society, the Cosmopolitan Club.

NFCUS PLANS GOV'T GRANT FOR BURSARY

EDMONTON (CUP) Dr. M. L. Lazerte, former University of Alberta Dean of education, now the research director for Canadian School Trustees Association, spoke to seventy-five delegates and observers at the NFCUS opening banquet Monday. He said that the federal government should institute a seven million dollar scholarship and bursary plan to equalize educational opportunity across the nation.

Dr. Lazerte thought that the best plan would be for provinces to pay a certain percentage of the educational cost with the federal government paying supplemental benefits.

Delegates at the Conference represented twenty Canadian University Students' Unions. Observers from student groups in four countries — the United States, Germany, France, and Pakistan, plus observers from the Student Christian Movement, World University Services, National Conference of Canadian Universities as well as the Communist dominated International Union of Students attended.

Editorial

THE MARATHON SWIM

The McGill Daily once more hangs its head in shame. This morning the Montreal papers appeared with an account of a successful assault upon Beaver Lake. We were scooped! What is worse, we had our own gimmick used against us. In the best traditions of the most sensational, low-brow, reader-grubbing, yellow journalism we had hoped to milk the Beaver Lake Marathon Swim for all that it was worth; but, "we was had."

We are most shamefaced about this matter and we really do feel that we have let our public down. The disappointment of our subscribers will be a weight upon our hearts forever; and the picture of a great reading public starved for on-the-spot coverage is a vision of pity which will never leave us.

To tell you the honest truth, and we feel that in a situation like this we can only be truthful, we did not think that Mr. Brewer, nor for that matter anyone else but the Daily authorized candidate, could be such an incredible ass as to even set foot in the water.

Yes, we are indeed ashamed that it never occurred to us that Mr. Brewer would immerse himself, as high as his knees, in this wading pond and go sloshing across for the glory of his home town and for the prestige of his Native Land.

Therefore, dear readers, we can only offer our most profound apologies, that we, a student newspaper, were not able to do full justice to this fine Canadian lad. We can only join the rest of the nation in wishing him, albeit belatedly, the heartiest congratulations and good wishes, in this the hour of his triumph.

DEATH OF THE INDIVIDUAL

Western culture today is threatened by the very mass production techniques and high standard of living that it has created for itself. People, like products, are becoming standardized; they are afraid to be individuals; they feel they must conform with the group.

The success of modern advertising is a proof of this. Only a few years ago, all toothpastes were white. Deodorants came in jars, lipsticks smeared easily, and no one had heard of a filter cigarette. But one toothpaste company discovered chlorophyll; a soap manufacturer produced blue soap flakes, and advertising took each of these discoveries, labored and brought forth for each that modern monster, a fad. The public would no longer buy white soap or toothpaste; and soon even that first innovation, the spray deodorant, was outmoded by a newer idea, the deodorant stick.

Another symptom of this standardization of the human being is the frequent use, particularly on this campus, of the slang term "type." Students are referred to as "RVC types," "Fraternity types," "Union types" or something of the sort. A small thing in itself, this is an indication of the larger problem. Modern North Americans conform so easily and so eagerly to the group that it is possible to fit them neatly into little categories or types. It is normal for individuals to possess certain similar surface characteristics so that they can roughly be divided into groups, but people today are too similar, too easy to type.

What makes them susceptible to fads? Why must each person always follow the leader and do as nearly as possible exactly what his neighbour is doing? Why is modern man afraid to be different?

Perhaps he cares too much what others think of him. This is a common characteristic in adolescents. Psychologists tell us that most juvenile crimes are committed because the child feels that he must conform with his group. If the standards of the group demand that he steal or join in gang warfare, he will do so because it is necessary to his sense of security that he be accepted by other children. He gets into trouble because the standards of his group are not the same as the standards of society at large.

Canada is often referred to as a young or adolescent nation. Is it also a nation of adolescents? Does the average Canadian need so badly to be accepted by his contemporaries that he will conform with them at the expense of his own individuality?

The standard of living on this continent at present is higher than it has ever been anywhere in the history of western civilization. Canadian children grow up taking a good many things for granted. Many of them never really have to strive for anything they want. Perhaps this situation has played a large part in making Canadians on the whole an immature people. If this is true, they are also a very vulnerable people.

The illustrations we have given are of standardization of surface characteristics only. However, we feel that they are an indication of the deeper problem — the standardization of thought. People who are afraid to dress differently, who are easily swayed by the latest fad, and who conform happily are often also afraid to think differently. When men of their own free will begin to conform to the group in their ideas, democracy dies.

"... and I did it for Canada."

Letters to the Editor

Sir:

The Daily recently printed an editorial discussing the question of how much McGill should expand to meet the demands of an increased student population as the "war babies" reach college age. A letter to the editor later pointed out that McGill really has no choice but to expand as much as she possibly can, because, as the only English university in Quebec, she has a duty to English-speaking students.

Perhaps there is an alternative solution. If McGill were to change its system and offer only three years of study in the undergraduate courses, as Queens' University does, for example, it could accommodate more students without having to increase its enrollment by much.

This plan would necessitate a major change in the Quebec school system in general. High schools would have to offer an extra year to students, so that they could take their senior matriculation before entering college. However, this could be done. It is being done at present in other provinces.

The first year of most undergraduate courses at the university now is not on a par with the other three years. Classes are large, particularly for the several courses that all first year students are required to take. End of term marks are more liberal. Despite this, a large number of students fail to pass their year and are forced to leave the university. If this first year were incorporated into the high school systems, those who simply cannot or will not do the work would be eliminated before they reached the university. It would be equivalent to setting higher standards, as was suggested in your previous article.

If the university only accepted students in the upper three years of undergraduate courses, it could take in better than a quarter more students in those courses, without increasing its facilities at all. If

Indians Win 23-9

Twelve large men and as many fast whistles didn't discourage the McGill Indians last night as they whitewashed the Eastward '55ers by a 23-9 count. The game, played at Morgan Park, was the Indians' first win of the new season.

The big gun in McGill's attack was Derrek Marpole, who scooted over the goal line for three touchdowns. Also starring was Bill Picard who was a constant menace to the '55ers offence stopping rush after rush.

FOOTBALL FORECAST

by Abdoul Ben Drapooch

In answer to an urgent plea from The Daily, I have given up my former position as racing advisor to the Commerce faculty, and will now occupy the post of Swami for this esteemed newspaper.

My first weekly prediction runs as follows:

Oct. 14th — Johnny Metras announces that Ralph Simmons is the best backfielder he's coached since Willie Casanova and that Simmons will beat Queens single-handedly. Metras still insists that this is the best Western team he has ever coached.

At a press conference in Toronto, Bob Masterson confidently predicts that Varsity will beat McGill by four touchdowns. "Muntz will tear their line to shreds" quoth me. Larry Sullivan has no comment but Rocky Robillard says: "We'll try to tie them up."

Oct. 15th — Gus Braccia throws three Touch down passes to Ron Stewart as the Gaels swamp Western 29-2. Simmons carries the ball 14 times and picks up 13 yards rushing.

In Toronto, Buster Brown and Ron Murphy tackle Muntz on the first Play from scrimmage, and Muntz is carried to the sidelines where he remains for the duration of the game. The Redmen make two goal line stands, and game ends in a 0-0 tie as Brown's attempted F G from the 2 falls short.

Oct. 17th — A press release from London announces that Ralph Simmons has been switched to flying wing, and he no longer will be allowed to have his name spelled in capitol letters on the program.

Oct. 18th — Simmons decides to resign from the Western team due to excessive pressure from studies.

The Ottawa Roughriders cut Bernie Custis and Avatus Stone who promptly enter Queen's to take post-graduate work.

That's all for now kiddies. I'm off to do some scouting for the big boat race to be held next week in one of our better known pavilion.

Tracksters Train For College Meet

If practice makes perfect, then the McGill track and field aggregation is a certain bet to break every world's record in their chosen sport. There are, however, a number of phenomena which tend to discredit this age-old maxim, especially around the Redmen stamping grounds.

Coach Joe Anderson is currently being plagued with his annual nightmares, as visions appear to him nightly in the form of Messrs. Harding and company, of the University of Toronto. These boys are not likely to lose very many races in which they are entered. There is, unfortunately, no question of their eligibility, hence, volunteers are presently being sought to assist in a mass-kidnapping over the coming Toronto week-end.

The McGill mentor is not all tears at the moment, despite this Varsity twosome, as the Trinidad flash, Matthew Boldon, seems to be rounding into top running form. A former mate of the British Empire Games 100-yard dash champ, Agostini, Boldon is experienced and is not likely to freeze under pressure. Whether or not he hits his peak condition by the time the Intercollegiate Meet is due to be run will depend on how hard pressed he is in practice. It is not, as yet, certain in which distances Matthew will compete, as his talents range from the 100-yard to the 440.

Boldon, of course, is far from being the only bright spot on the McGill crew. He is joined in his position by such stalwarts as High-Jumper Russ Briere, runners Peter Reid and Doug Maule, and Pole-vaulter Bob Land.

In last year's meet, the Anderson boys found themselves relegated to show position in a four-team field by the sprinters, hurdlers and field-men of the Ontario Institutions of Toronto and Queens. This despite the first-class performance of the famed Lionel Whitman of McGill who has since graduated, further depleting the Red and White ranks. This season may be another story, of course, anything can happen.

HOB0 PARTY IN BALLROOM

Vocational guidance is not the aim of tomorrow night's party in the McGill Union Ball Room. Students are invited to become hobos for one night only, in friendly fun. Old clothes, patched costumes, and a relaxed, carefree mind — well-known hobo traits — will be the rule of the evening, which begins at 8 pm.

Hobo friendliness will be encouraged by the variety of recreation, directed by Miss Betty Muir, Phys. Ed. IV. Games, contests, and stunts will give the tramps a gay time, in a realistic rustic setting provided by Morgan's Department Store.

Free handouts to keep vagabond body and soul together are to be provided during the fun, courtesy of McGill Christian Fellowship, the sponsors of the evening. They aim to provide a party of friendly fellowship that everyone will enjoy.

Activities Nite . . .

The Ukrainian Club, Der Deutsche Club, The French Society, the African Students' Association, the Spanish Club, the Newman Club, the McGill Radio Workshop, the Amateur Radio Club, the Gliding Club, the Arts and Crafts Club, the Lutheran Students' Association, the Canterbury Club, Hillel, Liberal Club, the CCF Club and the Polish Club completed the list.

CAMSI Ends . . .

McGill representatives are John Stubbs and Harvey Sigman.

One of the most notable and successful projects undertaken by CAMSI, was the student health plan. Methods used in the detection and prevention of tuberculosis were studied. CAMSI recommended regular tuberculin testing and yearly chest X-rays, which have been subsequently taken over by the administration at most schools.

coming events

Items for this column must be typed on a special form obtainable at the Tuck Shop and deposited in the Daily Mailbox which is situated downstairs outside the Features Office in the Union by one o'clock the day before the item is to appear. The deadline for Monday's paper is one o'clock Friday.

Any item not complying with these regulations will not be accepted under any circumstances.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1955

CONSERVATORIUM HOLDS AUDITIONS

The Music Conservatorium announces the formation of a Conservatorium Chorus (membership limited to thirty). Mr. George Little will be the conductor. The repertory will include the literature of the Renaissance, Baroque, and later periods. There will be a weekly two hour rehearsal.

Membership is open to all University students who meet the musical requirements of the group.

Auditions will be held by Mr. George Little on October 14, 1955 between 6 pm and 8 pm in the Concert Hall of the Conservatorium, 3450 Drummond Street.

WRITERS NEEDED FOR RED & WHITE

There will be a meeting today at 1 pm in the Red and White Revue office for all those interested in writing sketches, songs, and lyrics for this year's show. The producer Ron Clark, tells us that the show will be in the form of a musical revue. This will give a greater number of people a chance to work on the Revue. Although the writing is well under way there are still quite a few openings left for those so inclined. The Revue office is situated in the basement of the McGill Union opposite the Daily office.

RADIO WORKSHOP TO HOLD FIRST MEETING TODAY

The McGill Radio Workshop, 55-56 edition, holds its preliminary meeting to-day at 1:00 p.m., in the Union Ballroom.

Arthur Weinthal, first president of the group, will speak on the club's activity and answer questions. New members and everyone interested in any phase of radio or T.V. are particularly urged to attend.

Weinthal, a former producer of the Red and White Revue and now a television producer for Stanfield's Advertising Agency, has had much experience in both radio and T.V. He served as a news editor for radio station C.F.C.F. immediately after graduation from McGill and was promoted to head of the Promotion Dept.

ATTENTION ALL PUBLICITY MANAGERS

Anyone wanting to place any items in this year's Daily must place the item in question in the slot downstairs in the Offices in the Union. As well, the person submitting the article must sign his name and fill out other such particulars on the sheet attached to the slot.

Unless these orders are complied with, no copy can possibly be considered for publication.

NOSE FOR NEWS? REPORT TO DAILY

This should interest anyone that complains about the quality of the Daily. Do you want the Daily to have intelligent filler on its less newsy days? Have you ever put down a copy of the Daily and thought that you had been cheated of two cents? More important, are you interested in seeing that the Daily has more news? Or put it this way, do you have a secret desire to do some reporting which you have never indulged because you think that it would take too much time?

If you answer "No" to more than two of these questions, you are telling a big lie. If you answer "Yes" to any of them, you should get in touch with Brian Johnson at RE. 1-0452 any evening this week.

Letters to the Editor . . .

(Continued from Page Two) the problem of the increase in potential student enrollment is as great as indications now lead us to think, this suggestion certainly merits some consideration, both by the university authorities, and by the Quebec school boards.
